

TEACHING AND LEARNING

The Department of Teaching and Learning offers programs for bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees. We prepare teachers at the undergraduate and post-baccalaureate levels to work in settings serving culturally and linguistically diverse children. Our department features an American Sign Language Studies program, as well as training for interpreters of American Sign Language. We are committed to social justice, equity, and advocacy for children, youth, and families. We educate students to be effective, evidence-based practitioners and leaders, prepared to serve diverse communities situated locally, regionally, and globally.

At the undergraduate level, the department offers teacher education programs for Early Childhood (grades PK-3); Early Childhood Special Education (birth through grade 3); Elementary and Middle Education (grades K-9); English, Math, Science and Social Studies (grades 4-12); and Special Education, English as a Second Language, World Languages, and Bilingual Education Programs (K-12). The department offers American Sign Language (ASL) Studies and an ASL interpreter training program at the undergraduate level. At the graduate level, the department offers Reading license programs; master's degrees in Curriculum and Instruction (with multiple, discipline-based specializations) and Exceptional Education (specializations include Autism Spectrum Disorders, Transition, and Assistive Technology/Accessible Design), and certificates in a wide variety of specialty areas. The Department also participates in the School-wide Urban Education Doctoral Program.
